912	Cone Beam Computed Tomography (CBCT) machine	Cone Beam Computed Tomography (CBCT) machine equipped with latest computer workstation, image printer and all applicable accessories required for processing, archiving, printing and image transmission. It should provide complete detail of mouth, face and jaw areas in latest DICOM output with artifact removal algorithm . It should have cone beam image acquisition, pulse type exposure, single/dual scan with degree of rotation in range of 200-360 . Sensor Technology should be either Amorphous Silicon Flat Panel Sensor or CMOS Sensor. Should provide fast image reconstruction in two minutes or less with minimum grayscale resolution of 14 bit. Isotropic voxel ranges from $\leq 75\mu\text{m}$ to $\leq 500\mu\text{m}$ and Field of View (FOV) diameter ranging 5cm/less to 16cm/more and Height ranging from 5cm or less to 16cm or more. 2D panoramic images acquisition with less radiation should be possible when 3D diagnostic information is not required. Scan acquisition should be possible in standing, sitting with head immobilization devices and should have wheel chair access for scanning of old and disabled patients. Scout scan, laser assisted patient positioning should be present for better patient positioning. Complete software/s support should be present in 2D, 3D and multiplanar reconstructions for image analysis, networking,	01 (One)		6000000	2020-21	Dental College Rohini
2654	Nitrous Oxide Sedation Unit With accessories	The Nitrous Oxide Sedation unit should be completely mechanical. The equipment should be operative with single knob for adjusting percentage of gases. Should have Diameter Index Safety System (DISS) for Nitrous oxide and Oxygen connector couplings to prevent cross-connection. Oxygen Fail Safe: If oxygen supply is interrupted or inadvertently cut off, the flow of nitrous oxide should immediately discontinue. Minimum Oxygen Concentration: Unit should not provide oxygen concentration below 30%	01 (One)		600000	2020-21	Dental College Rohini
